milion dollars.

Besults so striking as these, can only have been secured by the habitual practice of a rigid economy in expenditures, great caution in the selection of lives, and a most active vigilance in investing the funds which have been, and are now, constantly flowing into the company. Moreover, our business is steadily on the increase: the returns thus far received from our general agents, and the current operations of the Home office, indicating an augmentation in the amount of our assignance of over ten million dollars during the present year, over and above all its cancellations.

I believe it to be true and worthy of all cost dence.

The great financial strength of the Company, and its more than sufficient pecuniary at hity to meet all its obtained to the low rate of ordinary expenses, and of mortality and high rate of interest which have characterized its experience in the past. In all these facts, which are vital in the science and business of life assurance, the Company exhibits a record of success and an attitude unequated by any other Company in the country or in Europe.

Our net prices for assurance are, as you are aware, duties are not merely formal, to give sanction without knowledge; but each inember at the several committees is required to know and pass upon the merits of each ceparase transaction in his department. For instance, no money is loaned until the value and other particulars of the eatie offered as security under mortgage have been ascertained by their own inspector of real estate; nor until the title thereto has been examined by expert conveyancers and by the learned and faithful counsel of the company and reported clear; nor until the title thereto has been examined by expert conveyancers and by the learned and faithful counsel of the company and reported clear; nor until the see have been passed upon by the Committee of Trustees and the writers signature of each member present given in approval of the loans—these papers each bearing a plan and description of the estate in question, all being recorded and preserved in the office. The success and value of these precautions are shown in the results that will be mentioned in another place.
